FATAL ACCIDENT AT BREWSTER PLANT

Charles R. Brannigan Horribly Mutilated and Instantly Killed by Explosion of Fulminate—Edward Barton Seriously Injured.

Charles R. Brannigan of Sleighsburgh was blown to pieces and Edward Barton of Port Ewen seriously injured on Monday afternoon about 4 o'clock when one of the buildings at the Brewster powder works at Port Ewen was blown up. The men were engaged in priming caps or fulminate of mercury exploders. The company has a large order for the nation now at war and is working to its utmost capacity.

Brannigan and Barton were at work together in a small building engaged in filling the caps with the deadly explosive. Barton had just stepped out of the building with a tray of the caps when he turned and saw something which caused him to turn back. The other workmen nearby heard him cry "Hurry, for God's sake, Charles." In a second the building was blown to bits, a big piece of joist being driven through a brick wall of an adjoining building and through the other wall of the building.

As soon as the debris ceased falling Mr. R. Brannigan and Mr. Blackburn were working only a short distance away, rushed to the scene and found that Brannigan was dead. His head had partially been blown off, both hands were cut off and his body was filled with the copper caps on which he was working. The body was carried for Dr. George W. Ross summoned. He pronounced Brannigan dead and sent for Coroner Ernest A. Kelly. Barton was thrown to the ground and found to be suffering great agony. His body was blown full of caps and required considerable attention on the part of the physician to prevent blood poisoning. Barton was in no condition to talk so the exact cause of the accident could not be learned. His condition is favorable so far.

One explanation of the accident is that some particle of the fulminate must have been lying on the bench
when Brannigan was at work there.
The least friction against the infinitesimal part of this would be sufficient to blow up the building. Nothing can be learned until Barton recovers his nerve. He is suffering greatly from the shock.

Still Seeking Guarantors.

A meeting of those interested in having Chautauqua return next year was held on Monday evening at the Y. M. C. A. and a resolution was passed appointing a committee of five to solicit guarantors. Luther S.
Decker was appointed chairman with power to select his associates. At the present time about sixty guarantors have been secured. It is expected that one hundred guarantors will sufficiently secure the plan of having one hundred instead of thirty guarantors is to spread the burden over a larger number. In order to secure the return of Chautauqua it is necessary to guarantee the association $1,200. With one hundred guarantors it would mean that each guarantor would only have to dispose of six season tickets at $2 a ticket.
The guarantors guarantee the Chautaqua Association the sum of $1,200.
At the close of the meeting refreshments were served. There were about twenty-five present at the meeting.

Three Chauffeurs Arrested.

There were three chauffeurs before Recorder Lang this morning on the charge of running their cars without them all in. They were Bernard Blakeslee, Arthur Tyler and Charles V. Brown. They were paroled until this morning when on being arraigned all pleaded guilty. Recorder Lang said that he would discharge them but if there was a repetition of offense he would inflict the full penalty. In doing so the court issued a warning to all other drivers that the automobile law must be complied with and the traffic of the city as well as an example would be made of someone.

Warned to Leave Town.

John Maguire, colored, was arrested by Policeman Boyd for being drunk and panhandling on Broadway.
He was given two hours to get out of town and to never return.

Another Fakir, a one armed man, calling himself James White, was arrested by Policeman Hess for being disorderly near the West Shore station. He escaped with a warning to get out of the city as soon as possible.

persons lost their lives in the recent floods in Texas, according to official figures made public today.
Thirty-six bodies have been recovered. Five persons missing at Austin were listed with the dead. In and about Austin 21 bodies were recovered.

Motorcyclist Killed.

ing into a fence after finishing a five

CHILD KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Alice Heidron, seven-year-old daughter of Charles Heidron of First avenue, died this morning at the home of her parents after being struck by an automobile on Monday evening. The child was playing in the street on Delaware avenue when Aaron Katz came along in his automobile. According to the people in the vicinity the child darted across the street in front of the machine and Mr. Katz did everything in his power to avoid the accident. The machine crashed in the little girl's chest. Mr. Katz did everything in his power to avoid the accident as far as the police can learn and was unable to avoid the accident. The father of the child takes the same view of the situation, according to current report. When the girl was picked up Mr. Katz took her to her home but it was seen that she was fatally injured and death ensued this morning. No one felt the accident more than did Mr. Katz and he at once went to police headquarters to surrender himself if there was any charge to be placed against him. His standing in the community was such that the police permitted him to go on his own recognizance, having no fear that he would avoid their summons if he was wanted. The body was taken, charged by Undertaker G. L. Wachmeyer and the funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the family residence, 24 Third avenue.

Plymouth, Eng., May 4.—U. S.
Consul Joseph C. Stephens, who is investigating the attack upon the American oil ship Gulflight by a German submarine, interviewed Second Officer Paul Bower and other members of the crew today. Testimony secured from seamen on the Gulflight will be made part of Ambassador W. H. Page's report on the incident to the state department at Washington.

Members of the crew of the Gul-flight while admitting that the weather was foggy off Scilly Islands on Saturday were insistent in declaring that the nationality of the Gul-flight could not be mistaken. Although no submarine was seen at the moment when the American ship was torpedoed, one had been seen about 25 minutes previously. The Gulflight was in convoy of two British patrol boats when she was attacked.

Second Officer Bower said that the Gulflight had been followed all the way across the Atlantic by a friendly warship, which kept out of sight but maintained constant wireless communication with the oil ship.

The Gulflight now lies in Crow Sound with a hole in her bow, her forward deck down to the water and her propeller just showing astern.
After being towed into port a heavy gale blew up which gave rise to fears that the disabled ship might be swamped. Salvage steamers and British patrol boats have been standing by the Gulflight ever since she was towed into Crow Sound.

According to cursory investigation the ship's $1,000,000 cargo of oil was not damaged and practically all of it could be saved unless the vessel was swamped by the heavy seas.

A Collision.

A taxicab from Bushnell's garage was coming down Broadway on Monday evening about 7:30 o'clock when Fletcher Banks riding horseback was coming out of Union street. The two met and Fletcher was thrown off the horse but not seriously injured.

TEN NEW VOTERS AT NEXT ELECTION

ternoon Arranging Work for the Remainder of the Trial Term.

Ten men were given the right to vote at the next general election when they were admitted to citizen-gage in the liquor traffic. The May

TWO BLUE RIBBON TWILIGHT BABIES EXHIBITED BEFORE SO-CIETY WOMAN IN UPHOLDING FREIBURG METHOD OF PAIN-LESS CHILDBIRTH.

New York, May 4.—Twilight sleep, the Freiburg method of painless childbirth, was upheld before 300 society women in session here as a much maligned panacea to womankind and a check to race suicide. At the same time women were warned that scopolamin, the drug employed is dangerous and that it should only be administered by a physician skilled in its use. Drastic Federal and State laws regulating the administration of the drug were advocated.

In answer to the charge brought forward against this method of painless childbirth that it weakens and endangers the infants born to mothers under the influence of the drug two blue ribbon twilight babies, Peter Boyd (photographed above) and James Stewart, were exhibited as two examples refuting the charge and a stow American-bred advertisements for a plan to construct a "Twilight Sleep" institution in this city.

liam D. Brinnier and Judge Sephan it was decided to set down the trial of Edwin Van Aken, indicted for the murder of his wife, for Monday,
May 17.

Ten New Voters.

As there were no cases found ready for trial that afternoon Judge Chester took up the work of naturalization and admitted ten of the petitioners to citizenship. The examination was conducted by Mr. Newman, the government examiner.

As the years go by the petitioners are gradually becoming better informed about the government and the replies made in reply to questions show, as a general rule, that the petitioner has studied the subject.

Those admitted were:
John Nolepa of No. 18 Second avenue, witnesses, Jarol Jarasiewicz and Michael Madojewski.

Janos Szlos of East Kingston, witnesses Joe Cheney and Samuel Astasos.

that the president was elected for three years and when asked how many states there were in the union replied 84, but when he heard subjected changed his answer to "85 states." His other replies were satisfactory and as he bore an exceptionally good character he was admitted. He is a farmer.

Over the Term.

The following petitions for citizenship were sent over until next term of supreme court for various reasons.
Berth Thompson of Woodstock,

NEW SECRETARY WARMLY WELCOMED

Chamber of Commerce Officials Formally Greet Their New Secretary.

Mr. Canfield—Urge That Jitney
Busses Be Taxed.

A warm welcome was given James
A. Canfield, the new secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, when a dinner was held at the Mansion House on Monday evening by the members of that body. Most of the directors were present and there were several of the members besides.
The dinner was served at 6:30 o'clock and Miss Host Holmes had prepared an exceptionally fine menu for the business men. Those present were President John B. Kearney, Jay Terry, Addison D. Pardee,
Walter P. Crane, A. R. Pardee,
Thomas J. Comerford, Jay E. Klock,
Floyd G. Edinger, Mayor Palmer
Canfield, Jr., E. F. MacFadden, Ralph D. Clearwater, William C.
Kingham, Willis Hills, John E.
Mahar, James F. Dwyer, Sam Bernstein, James A. Canfield, William M.
Davis, Peter Barmann, George D.
Beckwith, William F. Rafferty, Luther S. Decker, R. E. Leighton.

After the dinner President Kearney arose and said that he wished to extend a welcome to the new secretary, Mr. Canfield, and assure him of the hearty support of the members of the Chamber of Commerce in his work for Kingston. A simple call from the acting secretary had brought out a good sized representation which was proof that the organization was behind him. Mr.
Canfield had made sacrifices in accepting the position tendered him and the one reason was that he wished to come back to his home town, where he was born and to school and grow to manhood.
There is sorrow connected with the last meeting of the board at dinner as it was a farewell tendered to Mr.
Heehn who had so acceptably acted as secretary and done much work.
Mr. Canfield would carry that work to a successful conclusion, he was positive. Mr. Kearney called on Mayor Canfield, a relative of the new secretary to speak.

The mayor said that the city rings a friendly and united welcome to anyone who comes to boost Kingston. A great deal depends on the nature of the welcome. That of the lips and eyes is not sufficient. There should be hope, not a zephyr hope,
not a gloomy hope, but a buoyant,
deep, thoughtful and evergoing hope.
Hope alone can accomplish nothing but must be coupled with something else or be stationary. Without it it would be a negative welcome. The welcome should be a positive one.
The future does not always keep its promises. If the city has a future or the organization a future it must have a cause. Nothing can be gained without it.

He said that the city should as it unfolds a welcome have a hope and a cause. They should be a team with energy as the driver. He urged that selfishness be eliminated as well as unfriendliness and stagnation. The mayor said that the organization should go forward in column formation and not in Indian file.

President Kearney then called on Former President Sam Bernstein saying it was a long time since the members had heard his voice and he wanted also to assure Mr. Canfield of the cooperation and hearty support of the people of Kingston. Mr.
Bernstein in his usual happy manner assured the new secretary of the pleasure of having him as secretary and of the support of the members of Kingston. He pledged them to do everything in their power to aid him in the work of the organization.

The company then adjourned to the hotel parlor where the regular monthly meeting of the board of directors was held. Acting Secretary Pardee read a communication from Allen McMichael of the industrial department of the New York Central Railroad calling attention to the European war and that as soon as it ended there would be a general business revival. He bespoke the cooperation of the Chamber of Commerce in connection with the railroads.

President Kearney said that he had been a member of a committee to interview railroad officials for reduced rates for the freemen's convention in June but that the New York Central would give no rates whatsoever. The representative who had called here had said he would recommend that special rate be given but could give no assurances that it would be granted by his superiors. On motion of Mr. Leighton the secretary was directed to address a letter to the passenger department of the New York Central railroad.

The Mary Powell Steamboat Company sent in a communication stating that the service between New York and Rondout would begin on June 1 and from Rondout on June
2. There had been some discussion over the fact that there would be no boat out of New York on the Saturday before Decoration Day. It was stated there would be a boat out of New York on May 29 landing at Kingston Point and that on Decoration Day the Washington Irving and Hendrick Hudson would land here during the day. Filed.

An inquiry was made as to the articles in the papers concerning the "mosquito bed" on the lowlands below North Front street. Mr. Bernstein explained that a movement was on foot to fill in the ground and make a playground out of it.

A bill for taking the census at $75 was ordered paid. The treasurer was also directed to pay A. D. Pardee $25 for services as acting secretary.

Jay E. Klock offered the following resolution:
"Resolved, that the Chamber of Commerce believe that the common council should adopt an ordinance so that the jitney busses pay a license or be so taxed as to be put on a fair competitive basis with the Kingston Consolidated Railroad Company."

In explaining the resolution Mr.
Klock said that the people should stand by those who have invested money here. The trolley roads were not prosperous and for a long time have been unable to pay dividends on their stock. The road needs new equipment but cannot install it if it is subjected to unfair competition, which should be discontinued.
The busses cannot run in winter as the trolleys can. Mr. Bernstein seconded the resolution and it was carried. Mr. Leighton moved that a copy be forwarded to the mayor and common council. Carried.

An adjournment was then taken.

WHEN BARNES FELL OUT WITH LEADERS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Court House, Syracuse, May 4.— When William Barnes lost out on state printing in 1899 he complained bitterly to "Boss" Platt. He denounced Lemuel E. Quigg, and fell out with the whole Republican organization. This was brought out today in the $50,000 libel suit when Edward T. Platt, son of the late Senator produced letters from Barnes to Platt.

The introduction of the letters,
however, opened up an almost endless new line of evidence for the plaintiff. Mr. Ivins succeeded in getting permission to have Platt produce this afternoon all other Roosevelt-Platt correspondence that was not read by Ivins during the cross-examination of Roosevelt.

A South Rondout Mystery.

A mysterious personage, supposedly a woman in man's garments, is frequenting the streets of South Rondout, particularly at night. The supposition that the person is a woman is based on the fact that she has very small feet, and is knock-kneed. Sunday evening several persons positively identified her in the company of four respectable gentlemen of the hamlet. This seems to indicate that they are in league with her for some purpose. This "demon" has struck terror into the heart of the stoutest and made the coward flee when no man pursueth. She seems to possess superhuman strength and people from behind closed blinds and locked doors have seen her throw large stones for great distances. Even the village officers seems unable to cope with this anomaly.

Tuberculosis Hospital Gifts.

During the month of April the following contributions have been made to the Tuberculosis Hospital: Magazines, Mrs. Whitney; magazines, Stuyvesant; barber shop; two dozen eggs, Mrs. W. H. Kiersted; one dozen of honey, Mrs. Henzie, Whiteport; parsnips, Mrs. John Forsyth; underwear, magazines and books,
Miss Forsyth; magazines, William
Frey; three dozen eggs and old linen, Mrs. John Thompson; two dozen eggs and jelly, Mrs. L. Shaw, Katrine; magazines, Mrs. Ferguson; underwear and jelly, Mrs. Eltinge Longyear, Edenville; old linen, Mrs.
C. A. Jones; old linen, Mrs. J. B.
Marsh; iron for fire pots, Aaron Katz; old linen, a friend. There are now 20 patients at the hospital.

Towill Out on Bail.

The condition of Melvin Stewart had improved so much on Monday that Douglass Towill, who is accused of assaulting him, was readmitted to bail by Judge McKenzie and Towill was released from the county jail that afternoon. Stewart is in the Benedictine Sanitarium and his condition became so serious on Saturday that Judge McKenzie cancelled the $1,000 bail bond of Towill who was brought to the county jail.
Towill is being held to await the outcome of Stewart's injuries before being tried. Towill's mother furnished the bail for her son.

New Real Estate Firm.

Charles L. Davis and Martin L.
Spencer have formed a co-partnership under the name of the Ulster County Realty Company and will conduct a general real estate and insurance business with offices in the Preston building at No. 140 Fair street. Both Mr. Davis and Mr.
Spencer have been engaged in the real estate and insurance businesses for a number of years and are "live wires."

Lost Wager and Life.

Dyersburg, Tenn., May 4.—Mrs.

came frightened and ran away and crushed Mrs. Keith several hundred feet with her foot caught in a trace chain. She died today.

TONGORE MAN FACES BURGLARY CHARGE

Martin Eckert was arrested at his home at Tongore at an early hour this morning by a sergeant and three patrolmen of the board of water supply police on a charge of attempting to commit burglary in the second degree.

The complaint against Eckert was made by John Jordan, whose house he is accused of having attempted to enter on the night of March 23 last, when Mr. Jordan claims he caught him in the act of trying to force an entrance in the bed room of his daughter, Mary Jordan, whose disappearance after she had reached Kingston on Sunday, April 18, has not yet been explained.

When the officers arrived at Eckert's house at an early hour this morning they rapped on his door and demanded admission. When Eckert refused to admit them, they broke open the door. One of the officers remained on guard outside the house and as the other officers entered the lower door, he discovered Eckert climbing out of the upper window. The patrolman fired his gun in the air and Eckert climbed back in the house and surrendered himself to the police.

During the morning Eckert was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Buswell at Ashokan. He waived examination and was committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury.

HURLEY.

Hurley, May 3.—On Friday evening, May 7 there will be held in the Sunday school room of the village church a most unique entertainment. Miss Metz, who has been with us the past winter and who has made many friends during her stay, has planned an evening that will please all. Miss Metz has brought out several such entertainments elsewhere and we are assured that this will be one of her best efforts. The program will consist of clever pantomimes, catchy songs and taking recitations; there will be also an exceedingly clever drill, in fact two of them, which, when given in Kingston, had to be repeated; as a wind up there will be a delicious little play by Richard Harding Davis, called "Miss Civilization" acted by local talent. This means something good. Of course there will be ice cream and cake for those who wish for the social hour. (Usual admission, of 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children.) The proceeds will be divided between the church and Miss Metz's school on the turnpike.

A very pleasing chorus from one church to another was shown last Friday evening, when the Albany Avenue Baptist Church choir furnished an evening's enjoyment that seldom comes to us village folk. Miss Lucinda Merritt, organist of that church, but a true daughter of our local church deserves the credit of bringing to the entertainment of whiling to the Rev. Mr. Haynes and Mrs. Haynes, Master Merritt and the church choir must be given our hearty thanks in appreciation of their courtesy. The weather was not very pleasant but the audience was well repaid for its attendance. The music embraced a variety enough for all tastes and the recitations were appreciated most thoroughly. The program was as follows: Duet—Perce to this Duetting, (Smith); by Mrs. Hayes and Mr. Doye. Recitation—The Child's Dream, (Sturdevant); by Mrs. Merritt. Solo—When the mistle have rolled away, (Cole); by Mr. Bassett. Recitation—Barbara Freitshle, (Whittier); by Master Merritt. Recitation—Who's afraid; by Mrs. Haynes. Chorus—To Thee, O Country, (Eichberg). Address by the Rev. A. H. Haynes. Cantata—Dawn or the Kingdom, (Volcott); by the choir. Miss Merritt presided at the organ and brought to its fullness the possibilities of the instrument. The vocal selections were excellently rendered and were all heartily enjoyed, receiving well merited applause. The recitation by Miss Merritt was somewhat different from those heretofore given and was all the more appreciated; for an encore Master Merritt gave a clever little skit. Master Merritt's recitation with its required encore interested the audience as ever, when Master Merritt is heard in the church. Mrs. Haynes charmed the audience with her delicious rendering of her recitation taking off most amusingly the dark Domino Haynes tickled the audience with many hits and skits, revolving around his father's lecture on Lincoln, to whom he referred very frequently. Domine Haynes belongs to the Methodist Episcopal Church and lives in East Kingston.

SPECIAL TERM CASES.

Matters Before Judge Hasbrouck at the Court House Saturday.

A motion to compel Solomon G. Carpenter as referee in a mortgage foreclosure action brought by John J. Hull against Adolph Francione to deposit surplus moneys arising from the sale of the real estate with the county treasurer was practically abandoned before Judge Hasbrouck on Saturday when it was disclosed that not only was there no surplus but that the chances are that the referee will not be paid his fees. The property was sold but the purchaser paid no money and a re-sale will have to be had. The re-sale will take place as soon as possible but the order for the re-sale may not contain any provision for the payment of costs already incurred. Findings on this matter will be handed up to Judge Hasbrouck by Joseph M. Fowler, attorney for the plaintiff, and DeWitt W. Ostrander, attorney for the defendant.

A motion to change the place of trial of the action brought by William F. Hinman, doing business under the name of W. G. Saxton & Company, against the Foster Scott Ice Company, from Albany county to New York county was argued by Howard Chipp for the defendant and the motion and by Reuben S. Calkins for the plaintiff and opposed. The action is brought to recover on a contract and the defendant alleges a breach of warranty. The Foster Scott Ice Company contracted to buy coal from the plaintiff for peddle's trade in New York city. Two cargoes of coal were delivered to the ice company at South Amboy, N. J., but the third cargo was not accepted because the ice company alleges there were so many complaints from customers that the coal was not up to standard. The plaintiff thereupon brought suit to recover for the third cargo and also $200 demurrage charges which were paid to the Pennsylvania Coal Company. The ice company produced a list of thirty witnesses, twenty-two of whom live in New York city, six in the vicinity of New York and two in Kingston. The plaintiff had a list of twenty-four witnesses, five of whom live in New York city, one each in Troy, Rochester, Plattsburgh, Myersville, Pa., and fourteen in Albany nearly all the latter being coal dealers. The ice company claims that eight of its witnesses are customers who refused to accept coal, but the plaintiff claims that of these eight five have made denial that they made any complaint and two deny that they had any dealings with the Foster Scott Company. Decision was reserved by Judge Hasbrouck.

In the case of Albert D. Eller against E. M. Many and another a motion was made for an order staying George W. Smith as receiver of Fiera Many from disbursing any moneys in his hands until the determination of a claim of William Bascom against the receiver for moneys which he alleges he expended in the receivership proceedings on behalf of the receiver. The Bascom claim has been tried before a referee but it was disputed by counsel whether the referee reported adversely on the claim. An action against the receiver is also pending. Judge Hasbrouck reserved decision. Eugene H. Bouton appeared for the claimant Bascom and Alva Seibolt of Oneonta appeared for Receiver Smith.

Orders were granted in the following cases: Matthew Dean against Albert A. Leach, Jr., and others. Action in mortgage foreclosure. Order confirming report of sale granted. Betts & Betts of Catskill for the plaintiff.

James H. Elmore against Phoebe DuBois Elmore and others. This is an action to determine the validity of the will of Mary E. Elmore. Order for the service of an amended complaint on Frances Bruyn within ten days granted. Reuben L. Haskell by Joseph M. Fowler appeared for the plaintiff; William R. Rust by Judge Clearwater appeared for the defendants.

In the matter of the mechanics' lien of the Nitro Powder Company against the Aetna Contracting Company. Order extending lien granted. Joseph M. Fowler for the plaintiff.

In the matter of the petition of William W. Farley as state commissioner of excise for an order revoking and cancelling the liquor tax certificate issued to William F. Spratt. Order denying continuing action granted. Alfred D. Van Buren for the petitioner.

In the matter of the application of the board of water supply of the city of New York; in the matter of Horgan. Order to withdraw $785 deposited in court granted. Thomas Chastain for the petitioner.

Edward G. Barley and others against Jane A. Dunn and others. Action in partition. Final order granted. Kelly & Connelly for the plaintiff; Jenks & Shufeldt for the defendant Dunn.

Frank W. Young against Jansen H. Steen and others. Order confirming report of referee in mortgage foreclosure action granted. Virgil B. Van Wagoner for the plaintiff.

Mary H. Akin against Theodore J. Van Wyck and others. Order for publication of summons and appointing referee granted. Hector Sears for the plaintiff.

Wallace Crosby against Fletcher H. McLenan and others. Order directing service of summons and complaint on behalf of an incompetent person granted. John W. Eckert for the petitioner.

Every little while some one bobs up with the statement that woman suffrage may or may not be a good thing, but that "it is bound to come anyway." For the benefit of such we clip from "The Reply" a table of the results of voting on this question in a number of States during the last few years:

State	Years Suffrage Granted	Against	Majority
Ohio	1912	246,420	236,875
Ohio	1914	355,390	518,295
Michigan	1912	247,475	248,135
Michigan	1913	168,728	264,882
Wisconsin	1912	135,546	227,025
Nebraska	1914	90,738	109,842
Missouri	1914	182,257	322,463
N. Dakota	1914	40,009	49,410
S. Dakota	1914	39,605	51,519

That does not look as if suffrage is "bound to come." Level-headed men are giving the subject serious thought, and the more they think the less are they inclined to commit this State to an experiment which has been a failure wherever tried.

"I have been asked to endorse men for places I never knew existed in departments I had never heard of," says Chairman Tanner of the Republican State Committee. He is a pretty well informed man, too. The fact is that there are 169 boards and bureaus in our State Government, and we doubt that there is any man who can write out a list of half of them without using some book of reference. These different bodies have interlocking functions. For example, no less than twenty-six of them have authority over our charitable institutions. Conflicting orders are of common occurrence. This absurd situation has existed for many years, all the time steadily growing worse. Nobody attempts to defend or justify it, but there has been no serious attempt to apply a drastic remedy. It is hoped that the Constitutional Convention will take up the problem and solve it. There is no task before it more important.

Representatives of the City of New York keep up a loud complaint that the metropolis is being taxed for the benefit of the country, and it is curious that similar complaints are not heard coming from smaller cities, which have proportionately as much reason for finding fault. According to the latest census figures available, farm lands and improvements constitute just about one-third of the total value of all real property and improvements in the United States. Therefore, when millions are voted for highway improvement, it is clear that urban property pays two-thirds of the cost. Yet the money is all spent on country roads, while every city and village has to pay for its own streets. Nobody has seriously proposed any important modification of this policy. The fact is recognized that good roads are of as much benefit to cities as to the surrounding country, even if city people use them comparatively little. The only growing about it comes from the city beat able to pay and which has a tax rate of only $18.70 a thousand, which is far below the rate in most other cities.

It is beginning to dawn upon a good many people that the services of Billy Sunday are not absolutely essential to the saving of sinners. That evangelist has engagements for two years ahead and in that period numberless people are likely to go to hell. A sensible view of the situation is taken by the Rev. T. W. Barker of Cincinnati, who is quoted as talking to the Methodist Ministers' Association of his city in this strain: "To think that nearly 200 preachers must stand with hands down and wait two whole years for Billy Sunday to come and persuade God to save sinners in Cincinnati is humiliating in the extreme. You would pay $5,000 and spend it in your papers in the next three weeks in advertising, and you will have in ten days a greater revival than Billy Sunday ever saw." We believe that this is true. Merchants are constantly proving the power of printers' ink, and there is no reason to doubt that it would be equally efficacious in promoting interest in religion.

ligion. For every man who goes to church there are fifty who read newspapers. Of course, much would depend upon the copy for the advertisement, and there seems to be an opening in this field for men with the ability to write in a style which would catch and hold public attention.

MAKING FUN.

I frequently see a funny little man upon whose physical peculiarities someone fitted a singularly appropriate name years ago, without pausing to think that the fun-making name in time would be spoken within his hearing. Sensitive to a degree, none but his closest friends guess how the name has rankled and wounded from the day he first heard it and recognized its strange fitness.

The someone had his fun—but has it paid?

There are folk who almost invite a measure of amusement. We are only human, and the absurd dress, the exaggerated speech, the extreme manifestation of any sort, naturally challenge a smile, but they do not soften or excuse the making of fun, which is too pernicious a habit to find lodgment in a kindly human makeup.

The quick, witty little speech that darts out a funny comparison or a clever mimic in ridicule of friend or stranger may provoke a smile, which widens as it passes along, but it also starts a ripple of fear. We mightily hate to be laughed at for our follies or to be made a target because of weaknesses, but when we join in the burst of hilarity that follows a showing of sharp wit directed at another we may be fairly sure that our turn will come. Some of us may stand it equably enough, because there may be no particularly vulnerable spot, but when ridicule reaches home, it hurts, and we grow to dread the poisoned arrow.

We remember Marie Antoinette's fatal tendency to ridicule those associated with her in court life. Her merry, thoughtless jest spared none, and the responsive laughter and cheers rang freely enough during the bright days when the Queen could do no harm; but when her sun went down, the courtiers of whom fun had been made, the ladies who had been held up to ridicule, were not ready to do her honor or offer sympathy with the same zest that would have been her unstinted portion but for the thoughtlessness that did not disclose the better part of her nature.

Spurred on by the laughter, the thoughtless jesting grew and struck a harsh note which yielded in kind. She had her friends, loyal and true to the last but her need was sore for all who might walk in any way near her.

Doubtless it is well for our peace of mind that we cannot know the fun that is turned in our direction. A spasmodic diary-keeper within my ken makes some of her friends tremble at her possible entries, for she has a way of searching out their little peculiarities and giving them names that sometimes are as offensive as they are unfortunately appropriate. And who wants to figure as a target for the sake of adding what she is pleased to call "spice" to her records? But there's a penalty attached to her "fun," after all; for folk have learned to run away from her humor.

It is well enough, you know, to smile at someone else who is under ridicule, but when it becomes personal, that is quite another matter. For we know right well that little fun-making remarks are not soon forgotten. Memory keeps them alive when more serious things are buried away in oblivion. And the very fact that we care so much for ourselves and our own little dignity ought to whisper the warning that it is not manly, nor womanly at all, to make fun when fun spells discomfort for someone who has not a chance at defense.

And beside—though the fun-maker may easily win a laugh, he may as easily lose a friend. And that's a pretty big price to pay for a cheap bit of fun.

FRANCES SHAFER.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO.

May 4, 1895.—Mrs. Nathan Anderson died at her home on Abel street, Brennan Comedy Company, playing at Liscomb Opera House, stranded in city after a week's engagement. House of David Eckert at Port Ewen burglarized.

May 4, 1905.—Brickyard workers struck at East Kingston. Lasher's store and residence of Mrs. Edgar Snyder burned at Woodstock. Joseph Hawkins and Sarah C. Roosa married at Glasco.

Wanted to Find Out.

The young man in the bureau of information laid the railroad guide down and looked reproachfully at the woman who had turned in a volley of questions. "Madam," he said, "you can't possibly take all these trains you are asking about." "I know it," she replied, serenely. "But as long as I didn't have anything else to do I thought I'd just see for myself how much you railroad men really know about your business."

Elephant Needs Little Sleep.

An elephant usually sleeps only about five hours out of twenty-four.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

Master—"Is that really so, Pat?"
Maid—"To tell you the truth, I'm lyin'."—Life.

Master Bilton—"Pa, what does money say when it talks?"
Bilton, Sr. (speaking from personal experience)—"Good-by!"—Judge.

He—"Do you know, I have lately fallen into the habit of talking to myself." She—"I wondered why you were looking so bored."—Boston Transcript.

"I assume, madam, my ancestors came over with the first settlers." "Very likely. We had no immigration laws then."—Baltimore American.

"Here's a story of a French reservist who was sent from the firing line to the commissary for provisions and never returned." "That's easily explained. He was probably a restaurant waiter in America before the war."—Puck.

"Of course, you favor the uplift?" "I don't know," replied the busy man. "I'm a plain, practical person. Sometimes I think the uplift depends too much on literature and science. What I favor is the boost."—Washington Star.

Had Not Gone.

He was a new customer from the country and he had given a fairly large order. The courteous old senior partner was conducting him over the establishment, and the various improvements caused Mr. Giles' astonishment. A table telephone, with a loud-speaking attachment, interested him as much as anything. He had never seen anything of the sort before.

"It is a great convenience to us," explained the senior partner. "You see, we can communicate with all our departments without moving from my seat here."

"My, that's wonderful!" said Giles. "Can I try it for myself?" "Certainly."

The visitor got himself switched on to the packing room. "Have Mr. Giles of Mudbury's goods been sent off yet?" he inquired.

Back came the answer: "No; we haven't packed 'em yet. We're waiting for a telegram from his town; he looks like a slippery customer."—The Bits.

Cruel and Unusual.

Algernon, the golf champion, stood with his "kind to the orphan" passport outside the pearly gates, and the document looked good to St. Peter, so the applicant's harp was handed out to him from the check window.

"Oh, I say," protested Algernon. "I want to exchange this pocket piano for a golf kit." "Sorry," said the clerk, "but we don't have golf in heaven. You'd better try the other place."

So down went Algernon by the Milton express and landed on schedule time in Satan's kingdom. "Any golf links?" asked he, grown wary now about registering too hastily.

"Finest in the universe," said Satan, rubbing his hands jovially. "Look for yourself!" In fact, there before them stretched such links, such smooth, bright greens, such tantalizing hazards, such seductive bunkers, that Algernon could hardly contain himself.

"My dear fellow," said he, "this place of yours has heaven wiped off the map. Just tell me where I get my clubs, balls, and a caddy." "Aha, that's different," replied Satan with an evil smile. "We haven't any of those things. That's the h— of it."—New York Evening Post.

With the Rest.

An author of some note in her day once asked a famous editor to give his opinion on a book which she intended to publish. In her letter she said:

"If the work is not up to the mark I beg you will tell me so, as I have other irons in the fire, and should you think this not likely to succeed, I can bring out something else."

Having read over several pages of the manuscript, the editor returned it with the following brief remark: "Madam, I would advise you to put this where your irons are."—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

Pastor Welcomed Home.

The Rev. A. A. Zabriskie and wife, who returned recently from a six weeks' trip to New Orleans and San Francisco, were heartily welcomed home by the Bloomingtown Reformed Church congregation on Thursday evening last. The program consisted of music, a supper and speeches. The music was rendered by the young people, assisted by Mrs. Schwitter, wife of Rev. Amie Schwitter, of High Falls.

Mrs. Schwitter sang two songs, called upon to speak she responded most delightfully. Speeches were made by Mr. Schwitter, Mr. Beekman, Mr. and Mrs. Zabriskie. The Sunday school room was tastefully decorated. At one end was a white back ground on which was fastened in ferns the words "Welcome Home." To the pastor was given a handful of carnations and to Mrs. Zabriskie a handful of roses. Mr. Zabriskie has been in Bloomingtown over five years and the church is in good condition every way and the people are entitled to infinite credit considering their strength of numbers.

ALBANY DOCTOR
Makes Wonderful Cures

DR. SWINBURNE OF ALBANY.
will be in Kingston Friday, May 7th, at 340 Broadway.

A Remarkable Cure of Castleton Woman

Mrs. John Vandervall, of Castleton, N. Y., was an invalid for over two years. Doctors said she had Bright's disease, disorders and heart trouble. There seemed no hope for her case and she was confined to the bed for over a year. On the 12th of March, 1912, Dr. Swinburne of Albany, was called to see her and by a careful examination found that the other doctors were mistaken in their diagnosis. Dr. Swinburne assured her she could get well. Today she is enjoying good health and able to look after her house work and social duties.

Amsterdam Fireman Cured of Rheumatism.

Mr. Henry Cole, of Steamer 2, Fire Company, of Amsterdam, was so crippled from Rheumatism that he had to give up work, and could only get around with the aid of crutches. After treating a long time with several doctors without satisfactory results he became much discouraged and thought there was no hope for him. His attention having been called to the wonderful work Dr. Swinburne was doing he decided to make one more effort to obtain relief. To Mr. Cole's great astonishment he found after taking Dr. Swinburne's treatment one month he had no further use for his crutches and after three months' treatment was entirely cured. He is now at work and enjoys perfect health.

Severe Stomach Trouble Cured.

Mr. John Steiner, a Schenectady fireman, suffered terribly from stomach disorders, until his local doctors declared he had ulcers of the stomach, and there could be no help except by an operation. Hearing of Dr. Swinburne, he decided to consult the doctor, and after four months' treatment he has been completely cured, and can now eat any ordinary food without any distress whatever.

Another Remarkable Case in Schenectady.

Miss H. Robertson, of 24 Thompson St., had severe stomach trouble, also diagnosed as ulcers of stomach by her local doctors, and an operation was advised, but after two months' treatment with Dr. Swinburne she is able to eat all ordinary food without distress, is now feeling fine, and has gained 15 pounds in weight.

Albany Woman Cured of Diabetes.
A remarkable cure in Albany is the case of Mrs. George H. Rogers, of 585 Lancaster Street, Pine Hills. Mrs. Rogers had been suffering for some time with the disease known as diabetes mellitus, and her family physician could give her any relief or offer any hope of a cure, for as she stated the urine was very bad and heavily loaded with sugar and of high specific gravity. Knowing of the wonderful results of Dr. Swinburne's treatment in other serious cases, Mrs. Rogers decided to consult him, and now after six months, Mrs. Rogers is pleased that she has obtained a complete cure of the trouble and is enjoying good health.

These wonderful results are produced by the improved methods of treatment, and anyone suffering from any trouble where the family doctor does not produce relief, should consult Dr. Swinburne.

Wonderful as the preceding days have been, they are to be overshadowed by this third day. New goods, taken out of their wrappings overnight, are displayed.

They are American to the backbone, and clearly demonstrate what the remarkable resourcefulness and integrity of American manufacturers, combined with the skill and capacity of our own workmen can produce. In no detail are they surpassed by goods from any other part of the world.

But eclipsing this are the prices. With no customs duties to run up the cost of the product these home-made things are presented at low prices absolutely out of the question on foreign merchandise.

A New York theatrical man with an income of $25,000 a year went to Wall Street with $20,000 and tripled it. His head was turned—in a few months theatres closed—income ceased and Wall Street had finished his spare change. The EXTRAVAGANCE his family had been used to soon drove him to the extremity of mortgaging property and sacrificing pet securities. Today he is BROKE.

Vote for No-Mor-Dust

Think of it! There's a new way to sweep without raising dust. You don't even have to close the door of the room you're cleaning—you can dust the ornaments, furniture, etc., first, then leave them uncovered, and they'll be as clean when you finish sweeping as before.

And it's so simple, too! Just spread a little Nomordust sweeping compound across the room and then sweep it ahead of you as you go. Not only will it get your floor cleaner than you could possibly without it, but it doesn't allow a particle of dust to fly. Nomordust collects the dirt—ordinary sweeping spreads it.

Nomordust is fine for your rugs and carpets. It brings out the colors and makes them look like new. Equally good for wood floors and linoleums.

But this is not all. Nomordust saves half the effort and time of sweeping and you only have to sweep half as often to keep your house even cleaner than it has ever been before.

This is because you get all the dust every time you sweep—it clings to the powder.

One Nomordust user says that it's just like keeping an extra maid; she has so much time now for pleasure. Yet Nomordust costs but a few pennies a month.

Get a 10c can from your grocer today and try it. Money back if not more than pleased.

it that Baker intended to jump to

Commission upholds the New York

NOTED SOLOISTS FOR THE FESTIVAL

The following noted oratorio soloists have been secured for Haydn's oratorio of "The Creation," to be given as the third performance of the coming spring musical festival to be given on May 24, 25 and 26 in this city under the supervision of the Kingston Symphony Society:

Anna Chapman-Gould, soprano, who is now noted the country over for her oratorio singing, and who has just sung in the musical festival in Providence, R. I., will sing the part of "Gabriel" in "The Creation."

Townsend H. Fellows, bass-baritone, of whom it has been said in connection with his singing in "The Creation," that "From the first note of the recitative 'In the beginning,' to the last note of the work, in the oratorio, he proved himself a master in the art of correct and soulful singing," will take the part of "Raphael."

Benjamin Berry, tenor, who this season has created a sensation as an oratorio singer, will sing the part of "Uriel."

Such soloists, with the big chorus both here in Kingston and from Catskill, Saugerties, Ellenville, Rhinebeck, Phoenixia, Pine Hill and probably Marlborough, and the Symphony Orchestra, augmented to at least seventy-five instruments, should give such a presentation of this beautiful oratorio by Haydn as has never been heard in this part of the country. In addition to the evening performance of "The Creation," there will be a public rehearsal of the afternoon.
Norman Cooke-Jephcott will conduct the chorus, George H. Muller the Symphony Orchestra.

Furthermore, these artists will be among those who will participate in the soloists' concert on the second evening of the festival, with the public rehearsal in the afternoon. Another announcement which will create great enthusiasm in the city and neighboring towns, is that Samuel Gardner, who so charmed all who heard him, play the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto at the last Symphony Orchestra concert, has consented to play a solo number at the soloists' concert, and again as an honorary member of the Orchestra, sincerely interested in this big movement for the presentation of the best in music in this section of the country.

The Symphony Society itself is preparing a remarkable fine program for their concert, which, with its public rehearsal, will open the Festival.

Now as to tickets. Course tickets, which will include the three concerts and the public rehearsal, will cost $2.50, and may now be secured from either C. V. A. Decker, or the secretary, Mrs. C. N. Reed, telephone call, No. 1912 W. Such persons as now hold patrons' or subscribers' tickets for the Symphony concerts, can at once secure tickets for the course for $2, their own tickets for the Symphony concert, holding good for that concert, and of course they will be given first chance at the diagram for the Symphony Concert, as on previous occasions. Single tickets for either the second or third day of the Festival will be one dollar each. On the night of each concert, admission tickets will be sold at the door for fifty cents, and will entitle the holders to a seat.

If the people of our own town, assisted by their enthusiastic neighbors, will all have an equal opportunity to purchase tickets and secure seats, will help to make the success of this Festival, that it should be, and is sure to be, the Symphony Society pledges itself that next year's festival will be even a greater success from every standpoint. But upon the support of the people this year will depend the amount of money that the society will know it can expend another year, for such a musical education to the entire neighborhood as can at present be secured nowhere else in the state.

In view of all this Conductor Coke-Jephcott asks that the full rehearsal to be held Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock sharp at Symphony Hall be attended by every possible singer in the city who desires to sing at the time of the festival.

CLOSE VIEW OF A SHELTERED AUSTRIAN TRENCH.

The photograph shows a substantially and solidly built shelter trench of the Austrian army "somewhere in Galicia." An opening is left between the piled up earth of the trench and the overhanging log and earth covered roof. Through this opening the defenders fire at the ever on-coming Russians while, they, themselves, are protected from both rifle fire and shrapnel splinters. Such trenches defended by brave men are practically unattainable until destroyed by heavy artillery.

Reaching an Understanding.

A big row was going on in an Atch-inson home and finally, the Globe says, one of the neighbors rushed in and said to a woman who was red in the face from screaming at a very angry looking man, "Look here, what's the matter?" "Oh, it's nothing," said the red-faced woman. "Father and I are having a perfect understanding, that's all."

DEWEY STARTS BLUDWINE BRANCH

Frank D. Dewey of this city has established at No. 42 Thomas street a branch of the New York Bludwine Company and has several men employed in the preparation of the beverage known as Bludwine. During recent years a number of drinks have been placed on the market containing ingredients more or less injurious to the health of the public and as has been disclosed in the reports of Dr. Wiley some of them contain cocaine. Bludwine has been on the market for a number of years and is especially well-known in the western and southern sections. The absolute purity of this beverage is guaranteed by the Lederle laboratories of New York. Not alone that, it has nourishing ingredients. The beverage is made of pure syrup, a combination of extracts of wheat, oats, oranges, grapes, and sugar. It is absolutely non-alcoholic and contains no drugs of any kind. There is no coal tar coloring in it either. Bludwine has a deep crimson color and it seems that the discoverers of the process have made a drink that is wholesome and nourishing as well as satisfying to the thirst.

A number of physicians and chemists have analyzed this beverage and recommend it strongly, as there is a lack of anything injurious. It is a temperance drink in the strictest sense of the word and there are few in the country which can compare with it in flavor, purity and health-giving qualities. According to the report of the Lederle laboratories the drink contains no poisonous matter or injurious alkaloids and no chemical preservative or soap bark is used in its preparation.

This beverage is sold in two forms, as a syrup for mixing drinks at home or carbonated and exposed for sale in public places where such drinks are usually obtained. It is claimed for Bludwine that its refreshing and invigorating qualities come from the vitalized phosphates and other salts of the oat, wheat and fruit juices. The product is already finding a ready sale and the manufacture of it promises to become one of the city's important industries.

More Doctors Needed.

While the steamer which sailed from New York on Saturday last sent eight enrolled nurses to Austria-Hungary, four to Germany, five to Serbia and one to England to take the place of nurses whose time of service has expired, and further sent three American Red Cross surgeons to Serbia, one to Austria and two to England, still there is need of more help of this sort to fight disease in addition to caring for the wounded. A cablegram recently received from Dr. Richard P. Strong, under ordinary conditions Professor of Tropical Diseases in Harvard Medical School, states that an important international board of health has been formed at Nish, Serbia, to cope with the plague conditions there. The president is Prince Alexander of Serbia, the vice president, Sir Ralph Paget of England, and Dr. Strong is the medical director of the board, which includes the heads of the French, Russian and English sanitary commissions. Dr. Strong is very desirous that Maj. Gen. William C. Gorgas, surgeon general of the U. S. A., should accept the commission to assist in fighting the typhus fever, and in such case he would be made medical director and Dr. Strong would work as his assistant. At least twenty-five more doctors and medical inspectors are needed as well as a large quantity of disinfectants, cholera vaccine and other supplies. For the Serbian government alone, and not necessarily for this board of health, Dr. Strong says there is need of 150 doctors, inspectors or fourth year medical students. On May first, Brigadier General Carroll A. Devol, of the quartermaster's corps, U. S. N., became general manager of the American Red Cross, a man preeminently fitted for the position.

Semi-Detached House for Two Families. No. 119

Generally speaking the ordinary two-family house does not possess particularly attractive exterior. This is due in large measure to the similarity in floor arrangement; for exactness in detail does not lend itself always to architectural beauty, and despite the designer's efforts, the usual two-family house is an unprepossessing structure with little, except its revenue, to recommend it.

This is not the case, however, with the semi-detached two-family house depicted on this page. Here every art known to the craft has been employed to produce a structure of rare charm, and one that will not detract from its surroundings no matter how pretentious they may be.

1st FLOOR PLAN

The floor plans given below are of the front half of the house shown. On the ground floor there is a vestibule, hall, living room, dining room and kitchenette. The vestibule opens into a hall of generous proportions, from which a combination staircase leads to the floor above.

Passing from the hall through a columned entranceway one enters the living room, which is 12x6 x 19 feet. This room boasts of many delightful features, including large open fireplace, window seat with storage space and three casement windows. The fireplace is in line with the columned entranceway, and with the group windows in the hall beyond, while the casement windows are in line with the entrance to the dining room. French doors, casement windows and a large china closet with drawers and leaded glass doors, are features of the 13x14 foot dining room. The kitchenette, which is 10x13, is equipped with cupboards, commodious and conveniently arranged.

On the second floor are three chambers, all light and airy, a large bath room and several closets, one of which is designed for the storage of linen. There are two bed rooms on the third floor and considerable space is devoted to storage closets.

The other apartment while similar, is not identical in arrangement. The rooms are virtually the same in size and treatment, but owing to the roof, there is one less chamber on the third floor.

OLD LIBERTY BELL.

It is Not Only Cracked, but is Suffering From Metal Sickness.

"The Liberty bell is suffering from the disease of metal," says the Iron Age. This is due to several causes. The famous bell was badly cast in the first instance and was recast three by amateurs, who changed the composition of the metal with each recasting. The first crack appeared when the bell was tolling on the occasion of the funeral of Chief Justice John Marshall. In 1909 it was discovered that the crack had extended to double its original length.

The bell has been transported to a distance on six occasions and has been clipped by many vandal souvenir hunters. Its trips did it no good, as more or less rough handling was scarcely avoidable.

When the new crack appeared Alexander E. Outerbridge, Jr., an expert metallurgist, was called in to examine it. When it was planned to ship it to San Francisco for the Panama exhibition Mr. Outerbridge was again summoned, and on his report it was determined to keep it henceforth in Independence hall. In his latest report Mr. Outerbridge says:

"It is no hyperbolic figure of speech to say that the venerable Liberty bell is affected with a serious disease. Metallurgists have adopted into technical phraseology the term 'diseases of metal' and recognize several such maladies. I myself have no hesitation in saying that the bell has a distemper, which should insure its most careful preservation from all shocks such as it would be subject to in a long journey."

The Iron Age says that with each of the remeltings to which the bell was subjected it lost largely in tensile strength, resilience, etc. Mr. Outerbridge's experiments show that pure copper loses 50 per cent of its tensile strength by three remeltings. The Liberty bell was recast three times, and perhaps even at that time it had already been attacked by the disease that has been eating into its copper and tin vitals ever since.

LABOR AND RECREATION.

All Work and No Play Produces the Fatigue That Poisons.

Men and women come in the morning to their tasks with a spring of fresh energy within them. Little by little during the hours of labor they empty that spring. When it is dry they must draw from forces which should be untouched. By some strange chemistry which no one understands too well these intrusions on the physical forces which should be inviolate produce in the human system a true toxic condition—fatigue poison, auto poison the scientists call it.

If this fatigue poison passes a point where the period of rest following is not equal to the task of throwing it off and filling afresh the spring of energy, the man goes back to his toll a little unit; the longer he goes on the more unit he becomes. Slowly the poison invades his system. The repairing forces—food, relaxation, pleasures and sleep—become less and less equal to the task. The man becomes more and more open to the attack of disease; less and less able to do his work; unfit to improve upon it; unable to grow. He is an unsafe man, too, one not to be trusted among machines in dangerous places. The man has been poisoned into unfitness by the slow accumulation of fatigue poison which he could not throw off.

It was not work which did this. It was too much work. He needed the work to keep him fit. Without it or its equivalent, a regular physical exercise, his spring of energy would have surely deteriorated as it did from overwork. The spring of energy standing idle would have soured within him. Ida M. Tarbell in American Magazine.

AUSTRIAN 33 CENTIMETER SHELLS CAPTURED BY RUSSIANS.

Although the Russians have no cannons in which these captured 33 centimeter Austrian shells can fit, still they are watching them jealously until such time as they can capture a battery of 33 centimeter guns. Then they will turn the ordnance on the four owners. Ever since the beginning of the war Russia has been poorly equipped with heavy artillery—the only ordnance that counts in this war and nearly all the big guns the Czar has have either been sent to him by France and England or he has captured from Germany and Austria.

DID M'COLLOUGH TRY TO KISS A NEGRESS?

Did Deputy Sheriff Michael McCullough of East Kingston attempt to kiss Mrs. J. Bullock, a negress, and not succeeding proceed to beat her up. This was the question raised in the trial of her suit against McCullough to recover $1,000 damages for injuries she claimed she received, which was taken up for trial in supreme court this morning before Judge Alden Chester and a jury. The alleged assault occurred on Saturday afternoon, July 18, 1914, at Goldrick's Landing. The deputy sheriff claims that he did not attempt to kiss her or that he did not assault her and that Mrs. Bullock was the one who started the trouble. Judge N. Frank O'Reilly and Edward McKiernan appeared for Mrs. Bullock and City Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., for McCullough. The trial was continued this afternoon.

Mrs. Bullock, who is 32 years old, was the first witness called. She said that her husband, Louis, had sent her over to Chorney's place to get a hatching hen as they had some eggs to hatch. Chorney runs a saloon at Goldrick's Landing with living apartments over the saloon. Mrs. Bullock said that when she saw McCullough standing on the front porch with some men and that when she got near the place McCullough came down and met her and walking up three or four steps around her and said "You black—kiss me," Mrs. Bullock said she replied to Mrs. Bullock's invitation by pushing him away and "smacking" him on the face. She then went on to the Chorney place and going down in the basement she found Mrs. Chorney doing some light washing. She saw the hatching hen and then started to go across the street to the general store run by Mrs. Sadie Saban, better known as Mrs. Mills, when she said that Mike again accosted her and was going to kiss her.

Mrs. Bullock related in great detail the vile stream of obscene language which she claimed Mike addressed to her and then attempted to kiss her again when she called him a "dirty East Kingston puppy" and "smacked" him in the face again. She claimed that Mike knocked her down and then kicked her and that she had been unable to work since owing to the injuries she received at his hands.

She produced a dress badly torn and with blood on it. She said Mike had torn the dress and that the blood on it came from her nose which started bleeding after Mike had landed a tan on it. When asked as to whether Mike was drunk or sober she replied "He was drunk, yes sir, he was drunk."

When asked in regard to the hatching hen she replied that she hung right on to the hen even when Mike knocked her down. The following Monday she swore out a warrant for Mike's arrest on the charge of assault but later on the advice of her counsel, Mr. McKiernan, she withdrew the complaint.

Mike Lost the Kiss.

Mrs. Bullock told her story with great detail and when asked if Mike had kissed her she replied "No he didn't kiss me 'cause I shoved him away and smacked him on the face."

Mike when he took the stand later on in the trial denied that he had even attempted to kiss her saying "I'd want a kiss bad if I tried to kiss her." His reply, however was stricken from the record.

Mike claimed that he had gone to Goldrick's Landing to arrest a Hungarian on a warrant sworn out by Spait the mayor of this city. He said that Mrs. Bullock accosted him and he described the language that she said addressed to him. While it was vile enough it was not in the "same class" with the language that Mrs. Bullock ascribed to Mike, but never the less it was "some" vocabulary.

In support of her story Mrs. Bullock called several witnesses. The first was Andrew Chorney, 13 years old, and son of Joe Chorney who owned the saloon in front of which the affair was staged. Andrew's testimony was mostly to the effect that McCullough had had some drinks in the saloon before the fracas occurred.

White Has Capacity.

Octavius White, a negro, said that he was on the stoop with McCullough and several others when he saw Mrs. Bullock coming toward the place and he heard Mike say "Watch me kiss this black—look, the nature and said that he did not want to see anything like that so he walked back into the saloon and did not see the rumpus start. He later went out and saw Mike knock Mrs. Bullock down but he did not want to interfere so he said Mike was a deputy sheriff and he went back in the saloon again.

Octavius said that before the fight started there was about twenty "of us young fellows" in the saloon and that it was impossible to say just how much beer they all drank as they were having round by round as it was pay day on the brickyard.

Octavius on cross-examination by Judge Brinnier judged that he drank about a quarter of a keg of beer, but said he "can drink a keg."

He was promptly christened "Octopus" by Judge Brinnier.

When is a Man Drunk?

Octavius discoursed on the question of when a man was drunk. He said he was not drunk even though he had drunk at least a quarter of a keg of beer as he did not think a man was drunk until he had to lie down. He confessed later, however, that he had heard of men getting drunk on their feet.

Fred Deschler, a fish peddler, was sitting on his wagon in front of the saloon at the time the affair started but he did not see much of it. He said, as he was watching his wagon to see that no one stole any of his fish.

John Taylor of Saugerties, who is a fish and vegetable salesman, was at the saloon at the time, but he confessed that he has not been in Goldrick's Landing since the fight. He said he was in the pool room when he heard some one say there was a fight outside and he went out and saw Mrs. Bullock slap Mike in the face and then Mike pulled the sleeve out of her dress and said Mr. Taylor "that was all I wanted to see and I went back into the pool room."

He said that he and Mike had had some drinks together but he did not believe that Mike was drunk.

The last witness called by Mrs. Bullock was Mrs. Sadie Caban, a Slavie woman, who is known by the name of Mrs. Mills and runs the general store. She did not know much about the affair and her testimony was practically that she saw Mike have a hold of Mrs. Bullock's waist.

Only Husbands Can Whip Wives.

Mrs. Bullock in reply to questions while on the stand said that Mike had no right to beat her as she was his wife. She said that she had been before Judge Mooney at East Kingston twice, but she had never been convicted of any crime. The first time she was before Judge Mooney, she said, her husband took her. It developed that she and her husband had had a family quarrel and they had parted at it up.

Dr. Bongartz testified to treating her on the following day of the fight. He said her elbow was cut and her face swollen.

Mike Denied It.

McCullough was the first witness called for the defense and entered a general denial to the charge made by Mrs. Bullock and court took a recess until this afternoon, with McCullough still on the witness stand.

At noon the following cases were added to the docket calendar: No. 71, Katherine Speers agt. The L. B. Van Wageningen Company, an action to recover damages for personal injuries. Jenkins & Shufeldt for plaintiff and Walter G. Evans for defendant.

No. 72, Alexander Speers agt. L. B. Van Wageningen Co. an action to recover for loss of wife's services. Same attorneys as No. 71.

GRAPE JUICE AT HOME.

Government Issues a Bulletin Telling How to Make It.

By Telegraph to The Freeman Washington, D. C., May 4.—Anybody who is able to can vegetables can make grape juice, says a new publication of the United States Department of Agriculture, Farmers' Bulletin 644. The principle is the same in both cases—the sterilization of the product before it is stored away. In cases of grape juice this sterilization prevents the fermentation which is making wine turns the grape sugar into alcohol.

Fermentation is caused by various fungi, yeasts, and bacteria, which adhere to the skins and stems of the grapes. If these are killed, no fermentation is possible. They can be killed in two ways, but one, the addition of antiseptics, is not possible in the case of any article intended for human consumption, because the antiseptics themselves are injurious. The other method, killing them by heat, is the one used in the pasteurization of milk, and is equally simple and practicable with grape juice. Practical tests indicate that grape juice is satisfactorily pasteurized without appreciable change of flavor when it is heated to a temperature varying from 165 degrees to 175 degrees F. If the temperature is allowed to reach 200 degrees F., the flavor of the juice is changed for the worse.

For home use there are a large number of varieties of grapes which will make a pleasant and healthful drink. No matter what the kind of grape, however, only clean, sound fruit should be used and it should be well ripened, but not overripe. The grapes should first be crushed and pressed in an ordinary cider mill if the farm possesses one, or by hand if no mill is available. The subsequent procedure depends upon whether a white or a red juice is desired. For a light colored juice, the crushed grapes are put in a cloth sack and twisted until the greater part of the juice is extracted, one person holding each end of the sack. The juice is then put in some convenient form of double boiler in which it does not come in direct contact with the fire but is surrounded by hot water, and gradually heated to a temperature close to 200 degrees F. As has already been said, however, it should not be allowed to go over this point. If no thermometer is available, it is best to heat the juice until it steams and then to take it from the fire before it is allowed to boil. It should then be poured into a glass or enameled vessel and allowed to settle for 24 hours, after which it can be drained from the sediment and run through some form of cloth filter. The strained juice is then put into clean bottles and sterilized once more in a water bath. An ordinary wash boiler with a thin board on the bottom for the filled bottles to rest on is a convenient home device for this purpose. After sterilization the bottles should be corked immediately with new corks, the corks having been previously soaked for about 30 minutes in hot water.

For red juice, the crushed grapes are first heated to the same temperature as before and then strained through a clean cloth or drip bag without pressure. Thereafter, the process is the same as for light colored juice.

Grape juice should be stored away in bottles or jars that are not too large, for after these have been opened the juice is likely to spoil. If properly made, however, the juice should keep indefinitely as long as it is kept in sealed bottles. In this respect it is, of course, like other canned goods, which should always be used as soon as possible after they have been opened.

Of the various varieties of grapes common in this country, the Delaware gives a juice of delicate aroma and excellent flavor. The Concord is darker with a sprightly taste and well known aroma. The Catawba, Isabella, and Salem grapes also yield an excellent product. The California varieties produce a very sweet juice, but in many cases there is little characteristic flavor. For home use, however, the kind of grape that is most abundant in the vicinity will, of course, be used.

IN A HURRY TO LOAF

Diamond Performer Has Penchant for Great Speed.

Never-Ending Wonder to Layman That Baseball Players Do Everything at Breakneck Pace—Not a Moment is Ever Lost.

Will some student of psychology please rise and tell the ladies and gentlemen why ball players, who, as a class, have more spare time on their hands than any other body of men actually engaged in any sort of occupation, are always in a hurry?

It is a source of never-ending wonder to the layman—that the athletes should do everything at such breakneck speed that one might think they had only a few minutes longer to live and wanted to improve the time, writes E. A. Batchelor in Detroit Free Press. They hurry their dressing in the morning, take their meals on the "high" walk fast, read fast and undress rapidly when retiring. Not a moment is lost, though nobody ever has been able to discover what becomes of all the time saved by this bustle and confusion.

Coming back from the ball game in a foreign city, for instance, the players will exhort the driver of their bus or taxicab to make all possible speed. Thirty miles an hour they consider the proper rate for a taxi through crowded streets, while with a horse-drawn vehicle, the steeds must be constantly kept on the gallop.

On arrival at the hotel, the players take a rapid bath, dress in four minutes and then are ready for dinner. Fifteen minutes is the time allotted to this meal and the waiter who prolongs it beyond that limit is not likely to get a tip. The major league likes course dinners, but he wants courses to overlap. His soup must be on the table when his oysters are finished and his fish must be ready when he still is burning his tongue with the last mouthful of soup.

Having saved five minutes on the trip from the ball park by forcing some reckless driving, another five minutes by rushing his toilet and at least half an hour by bullying the waiter at dinner, what does the feverish athlete do? Does he attend some theatrical performance, lecture or sermon, no fragment of which he can afford to miss by being late? Does he meet a pretty girl and take her for a walk or to the show? Not much he does! In seven cases of every ten, he spends the entire evening loafing around the lobby of the hotel, writing letters or perhaps playing a game or two of pool. Anyone of these means of passing the time away might just as well start at 8:30 o'clock as at 6:30, but you never could convince a ballplayer of that fact.

James Leslie Vaughn, the big left-handed pitcher of the Chicago Cubs, was born in Weatherford, Tex., April 9, 1888, and had one of the most sensational minor league careers on record.

The first time he ever saw a ball ground with a fence around it was in Hot Springs, Ark., when he joined the local team of the Arkansas league, in 1908. One month after reporting to Hot Springs, Vaughn had attracted the attention of almost every major league club, and was purchased by the New York Americans on May 15. Lack of experience sent him to Scranton of the New York State league, but he was recalled in a month.

In the spring of 1909 he was sent to Macon, Ga., but was then recalled and sent to Rochester, N. Y., in July. Clark Griffith, then managing the Reds, claimed him, but the national commission set aside the claim and sent him to Louisville of the American association.

In 1910 he was repurchased by the New York American club, and remained with that team until the end of June, 1912, when he was sent to the Washington Americans via the waiver route. He remained with Washington until August 26, when he was traded to Kansas City.

Vaughn twirled great ball for Kansas City in 1913, and was purchased by the Chicago club in midseason of 1913.

HIS SUMMER OUTING

How He Saved a Girl From Drowning.

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

On Lake Winnepesaukee in New England is a camp where in summer several hundred girls of all ages from twelve to twenty are congregated. They are housed in bungalows and eat on a long, broad portico, an extension of the central building, and dance in a hall built expressly for that purpose and for sundry exhibitions. There are riding masters and swimming masters—each of course involves horses and paraphernalia for both—and canoes and libitum. A number of tennis courts complete the equipment for summer exercises.

Camp Woomoc is located on one end of the lake, which is several miles long and from a half to a mile wide. A newcomer is not allowed to go out in a canoe until she can swim continuously a certain distance and keep afloat for fifteen minutes. Having passed this test, she may thereafter go canoeing at her pleasure. She is not hampered with skirts, for every girl must wear the camp uniform—a blouse, bloomer knickerbockers and stockings to the knees. This dress is also worn by the ladies in charge, and when they are short and fleshy it gives them an appearance of a waddling fat hen. As the young ladies in camp costume, they all look about the same age—that is, anywhere between twelve and fifteen.

Nicholas Brewerton, a young lawyer of promise, having worked very hard during the winter till late into the spring, inquired of friends in New England for a place to spend a few weeks where he could be quiet. There must be no hotels, no casinos, nobody, in fact, except himself. The best that could be done for him was Lake Winnepesaukee. The person who recommended it—a Miss Webster—forgot to say anything about the girls' camp. It may be that she left it out of her description of the location intentionally, thinking that the sight of young girls paddling about in picturesque costumes would be a pleasant sight for the young man. She may have had a sinister intention. Be this as it may, the young man was recommended to go to Lake Winnepesaukee, but to the other end from the girls' camp.

Brewerton went to Lake Winnepesaukee and found at the end where he had been advised to settle several cottages, one of which was to rent. After learning that the occupants of the others were couples with small children who desired quietude he took the vacant cottage, getting his meals at a farm house near by. There was a rowboat in an outhouse which was rented with the house. Being settled, Brewerton prepared to live an uneventful life and rest.

But "man proposes, God disposes." One morning—the next after his arrival—Brewerton got out his rowboat and started out to row lazily on the lake. It was a beautiful summer morning, and the hills on one side were reflected in the water. Light clouds floated above as indolently as Brewerton floated on the lake. He was much pleased that this was the only boat within sight. Truly this was just what he had come for. He thanked in his heart the lady who had recommended it.

Hark! Brewerton had pulled up near the shore where there were overhanging trees. From under the branches came an exclamation of dissatisfaction. The voice was feminine and seemed to be that of a child. From a disturbance of the branches he inferred that some one in a boat had become entangled in them. A few strokes brought him to where he could see what was going on.

First, there was a canoe with the word "Woomoc" painted on the bow; second, there was a girl in the boat, who might have been twelve, thirteen and perhaps fourteen, dressed in a costume Brewerton had never seen before. The navy blue material of her apparel had been a skirt or something else, he could not tell what. Judging from its length, she should be about six years old, but Brewerton was sure she was not as young as that.

"Can I do anything for you, little girl?" he asked.

"I'm not quite as familiar with canoeing as I should be. I came under the shade of these branches, and in getting out I am afraid I shall upset the canoe."

Brewerton reached forth his hand, took hold of an end of the untidy skirt and withdrew it from under the branches.

"Can you manage it now?" he asked.

The girl put her paddle in the water, and the canoe careered on one side. She gave a little shriek.

"Your mother should not have let you come out in such a toppy boat without your being accustomed to such sport. Look out! You'll go over."

"Oh, dear, I'm afraid I'll be drowned!"

Brewerton was perplexed. He did not like to leave the child in her perilous position and did not know what to do with her. Finally he told her that if she would get into his boat he would take her home with her canoe in tow. She gladly accepted the invitation, taking a seat in the stern facing him and holding a line attached to her canoe.

"Where do you live?" asked Brewerton.

The girl looked in several directions, then pointed to a house on the opposite side of the lake. But half the distance had not been traversed when she pointed to a house in another direction. Brewerton looked at her in surprise, and she said she had "got turned around." But she soon confessed herself mistaken again and said she thought she would go to the camp.

"What camp?"

"Camp Woomoc."

Then for the first time Brewerton learned that around a bend in the lake there was a girls' camp.

"For kids?" he asked.

"Most of us are kids, but there are some older girls."

For a kid she was quite entertaining. Brewerton was amused to hear her at times talk like a grown person. She had a sweet smile, a pair of dimples in her cheeks and pretty eyes. Brewerton was inclined to think that when she became a woman she would be quite an attractive one.

Presently they turned the bend, and the parson, turning, caught sight of the camp. He was much astonished. There on the margin of the lake was a congregation of boats about a large float for swimming purposes, equipped with diving apparatus. Brewerton pulled up to a landing where stood a number of girls, all in camp costume. His passenger got out of his boat, thanked him and, having tethered her canoe, went up to the camp.

Brewerton pulled back to his cottage, not knowing whether to be dissatisfied or not with his discovery. He rather thought that he would like to have the little girl go boating with him occasionally. Her prattle rested him. Indeed, during the next few days he found himself wishing he would meet her again on the lake. If he should he would inquire her name and address and ask her mother if she would not let her come out with him.

One afternoon Brewerton got into his boat for a pull to explore the lake from end to end. He pulled up past Camp Woomoc till he could go no farther by water, then turned and pulled back. Noticing that the swimming float was covered with girls, while others were splashing in the water, he concluded to go to it and watch the aquatic performances. At a point about a hundred feet from the float he paused. Some of the girls were diving from a springboard. One girl climbed a ladder and stood on a platform about twenty feet above the lake. Presently she gave a jump and plunged headforemost. The water closed over her, and she did not appear again for half a minute, and when she did she popped up within a few yards of Brewerton's boat and facing him.

Great heavens! She was the kid he had rescued from under the branches of a tree and had taken into his boat to save from drowning!

The water was cool, but not cool enough to keep the blood from rushing in a torrent to her cheeks. Though out of breath, she ducked and came up with her face the other way and swimming lustily for the float.

Brewerton's eyes were opened to the fact that he had been fooled. Indeed, he had been fooled in more than one respect. He had by this time seen a number of the girls of the camp and had learned that he could not judge of their age when in camp costume. But why should this girl have deceived him, feigning to be afraid of the water? Quite likely she was one of the most expert canoers on the lake. Doubtless she was one of the denizens of the camp. All this was unintelligible to Brewerton, and, being unintelligible, it occupied his mind during the rest of his sojourn at Lake Winnepesaukee.

One day in September, after the fall regatta back to the city, Brewerton received a message from his friend Mrs. Webster, asking if it would be convenient for him to dine with her the next evening. She was anxious to hear how he liked Lake Winnepesaukee. He replied that it would be convenient, and he was desirous of learning why she had not told him that there was a girls' camp on the lake.

Brewerton had been admitted to his hostess' house and was telling her about how he liked the lake when the doorbell rang and another guest was admitted. Mrs. Webster left him to receive the newcomer and presently returned with a stately young woman in dinner dress. Brewerton's eyes were fixed on her for a few moments before he recognized in her altered costume the girl he had saved from drowning.

There was on the young lady's face an expression of mingling emotions. There was some blushing, some shrinking, some sign of a guilty conscience, the whole topped with a dash of amusement. On Mrs. Webster's face it was all amusement. On Brewerton's face—Brewerton's face was indescribable.

"This is my friend Nick Brewerton," said the hostess, "and this is also my friend Miss Eleanor Tibbits. I believe you two have met before. Be seated."

It was not till long after this, when Brewerton had become the husband of Miss Tibbits, that he learned what a nefarious conspiracy had been concocted against him. Miss Tibbits had been with Mrs. Webster when he asked to be recommended to a restful summer spot where there were no women. Miss Tibbits—she was twenty years of age—thought it would be a good scheme to impose herself on the gentleman in camp costume as a little girl. She had engaged to go to Camp Woomoc and when Brewerton arrived was posted as to the fact. She had "laid" for him and caught him the first day after his arrival. Her husband, referring to her popping up before him after having taken a twenty foot dive, declared that it was more surprising than if he had seen a veritable mermaid with a fish's tail.

Talking and Conversation.

How many of us fall into the error of imagining that to be able to talk well is the same as being able to converse well? A good talker is seldom a good listener. But a good conversationalist always is. Conversation should not consist in "listening to yourself in the presence of others."

We Must Do.

It is not enough to know; we must turn what we know to account. It is not enough to will; we must do.—Goethe.

Milady's Mirror

How to Massage the Face. After cleansing the face cover with cold cream and compress the lips. Massage the sagging lines about the mouth first with the first finger of each hand. Place the thumbs under the chin and with an upward circular stroke smooth out each line. If the mouth has a tendency to turn down at the corners lift with the finger tips at ending of each stroke. Use all the fingers on the throat; raise the elbows well and give long, steady strokes upward to the ears. Remember the throat should never be rubbed downward, but always upward, with gentle pressure. On the face the main object of stimulative rotation should be to stimulate relaxed skin and also to dissolve the fat folds.

If the face is very fat it will be found beneficial to lift or pinch up the fat folds between the thumb and finger and give them a rolling, kneading motion. The object of this is to reduce the fat by stimulating absorption. In all these movements care should be taken not to continue them too long if a feeling of irritation is felt.

In applying the powder do not rub it downward and thus force it into the pores. As already explained, it is quite essential to skin health that the pores can be open and pure at all times. Fluff the powder on and smooth gently, and at the same time dust off all that does not cling to the skin.

For Puffiness Under the Eyes.

Puffiness under the eyes is often due to inflammation of the lower lid. Pull the lid down, and if it is red and inflamed you will know it needs attention. Purchase a glass eye cup, fill it half full of salt water, about as salty as tears. Lean the head forward, fit the cup to the eye socket, hold it firmly, throw back the head and open and close the eye ten times. Lean the head forward and remove the cup. This will wash the eyes, rest them and reduce the inflammation. Boracic acid, tea grains to the ounce of distilled water, is very good and can be used the same way.

To retain a fresh, youthful color the tiny blood vessels or capillaries which carry the blood to the skin must be kept in a healthy, active condition. The colorless parchment-like skin of the aged is due to the fact that these little capillaries wither away and the skin is not properly nourished. Therefore it is important that the blood should be brought to these tiny blood vessels. This can be accomplished by steaming, facial massage and electricity or the vibrator. When properly given they will strengthen the muscles, clear the skin and stimulate the action of the tiny blood vessels.

Tight Shoes a Menace to Beauty. Recently long, narrow feet have been the rage, and girls with short fat feet, size 3D, all try to wear 5A, which is just as bad as trying to wear shoes too short for the feet.

No woman who tries to pinch her feet into shoes too short or too narrow for her realizes what infinite harm she is doing to her health and consequently to her appearance. Tight shoes affect the body in two places—the eyes and the digestion.

The girl who habitually squeezes her feet can usually be distinguished by her red lids, red nose and sallow, unhealthy skin. Pinching the feet affects first the digestion, which in turn discolors the nose and spoils the complexion. No girl who suffers from indigestion ever has a clear, rosy complexion. It is generally a muddy color, marred by blotches and specks. Every one can tell a pinched foot by a single glance, and its owner at once becomes an object for ridicule. So the girl who distorts her feet spoils her complexion, and for what? A vain delusion that she is appearing more beautiful by doing so.

To Keep Hands White.

The house worker can keep her hands in nice condition if she will exercise a little care. When they have been stained by vegetables or fruit the stains should be removed with an acid, lemon, vinegar or sour milk, and then rinsed in contact with soap or soapy water. Always rinse off all soap before wiping the hands, and be sure they are wiped perfectly dry.

At night rub in some good cream, powder the hands and keep them in loose gloves all night. The hands will be as white and soft as though they had never done a bit of housework.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

New York, May 4.—The chances of a negro holding a pugilistic title in the future are practically nil. Every division champion now is a white man and each champion has vowed that he will never meet a negro in a title battle.

Jack Johnson's conduct while champion caused the lifting of the bars against the negroes. Johnson's actions brought the pugilistic game into worse repute than it ever was. The only salvation for the ring game was the defeat of Johnson by a white man, and now that it has been accomplished championship battles between negroes and whites are passed.

Jess Willard has refused to meet negro challengers. The fight fans back him up in his stand. They want no more mixed bouts. The ring game is none too pure as it is. It narrowly escaped death while a negro held the supreme title. And those who love the game for the game's sake, and those who love it for the money it brings them, want to keep it alive.

Joe Gans was a model champion. He never did anything to hurt the game. Rather he helped it. George Dixon was another negro who was a credit to the ring. Joe Wolcott was liked by whites as well as negroes because he fought cleanly and with honor. But the cleanness and honesty of those negroes has been discontinued by the public because of Jack Johnson's actions that brought disgrace to the race he represented.

Another three weeks or so and the majority of pugs will go in their summer retirement. The fans forsake ring contests in close, stuffy arenas during the hot months and pursue out door pleasures, thus forcing most of the fight club gents to shut up shop and pray for September to shut around.

And the pugs? Oh, they do various things during the summer. If they happen to be top-notchers, with healthy bankrolls, they rusticate for three months in their villas-by-the-sea, or tour the country. The "pork and beans," who are not too lazy get jobs that enable them to keep in shape and keep them in food, or they get their friends to stake them to a roll large enough to provide the necessities of life until the open season for the pugilistically inclined comes around again.

The recent Johnson-Willard bout in Havana brought together many prize fighting gents—and most of them were cauliflower ears. On the night before the fight it so happened that Mike Gibbons, wearing a deformed ear, Bat Nelson, wearing two, "Steamboat Bill" Scott and Willie Beecher, possessed of one each, together with several other funny-eared folks, were standing in groups in the lobby of the Hotel Plaza, when a Cuban came in from the Isle of Pines. He sighted the cauliflowered group, gasped, took another squint and then said: "I am glad I was born a Cuban and so escaped the risk of inheriting such ears."
